

Kanine Korner

By Francis X. Lohmann

If dogs could master the human language, their pleas would be, I am sure, to all of us who assume canine ownership: "Dear Master: "You are the only god a dog can have, whose simple pat is a thing far more precious than any honor, hear now the plea I offer in all humility before the court where you are my spokesman as well as my judge. To you, oh master I yield all that is within a dog's power to give—all loyalty, all obedience, all love. In you I place unquestioning faith: and I remain constantly eager, at need to meet even death for you. This service is your due, for you are my the fate of countless days in the cold misery of a laboratory. Keep me from strange hands laid upon me in callous violence. Protect me from strange voices calling me by laboratory number instead of my own comfortable name. Grant that I not be tortured on the scientific rack until there is no part of my body left to hurt. "For if it be your will that I must die in agony, let me die at your feet and not upon the table of these men called vivisectors, but in some place close to you, where my failing ears may be comforted by your soothing voice and where my glazing eyes may look in my last moments upon your precious face. "All these things I dare to beg, oh master, out of my confidence in your perfection, in the certainty that your wisdom and power and goodness are as complete and unwavering as my own steadfast devotion to you."

Two all breed dog shows and obedience trials hovering on the canine horizon—San Luis Obispo Kennel Club holds forth Saturday at Santa Rosa Park in San Luis Obispo Kennel Club follows suit at Santa Maria Fairgrounds in Santa Maria. . . . Mark Twain once said: "If you pick up a starved dog and make him prosperous he will not bite you. This is the principal difference between dog and man." I recently spotted this tear-stained epitaph on a departed little doggie's tombstone— "We loved him very much; God loved him more and silently took him away. . . ." Margaret Wells on her informative "Margaret's Menagerie" weekly radio program (Saturdays at 9:30 a.m. over KTYM-FM, 103.9) recently inaugurated a new feature—a pets lost and found segment. Margaret tells me its a public service for all pet owners, and I might add, an overdue one. Should you lose a pet or find one—write (do not call) Margaret Wells at KTYM-FM, 6803 West Blvd., Inglewood, and she will broadcast the lost pet's complete description the following Saturday morning. MY HEARTIEST congratulations and a king sized bark to this vivacious pet-loving lass. She is a staunch friend of the animal kingdom. God love her! . . . The eyes and nose are the first to reflect any illness in your dog. Redness or inflammation of the eye, a discharge from the nose or a cough coupled with inactivity and listlessness may indicate trouble. Take you dog's temperature and if the reading shows a fever present, consult your vet at once. Never delay! A matter of minutes sometimes can save your beloved dog's life. Happ birthday to the Boston Terrier celebrating their 76th anniversary next month. The popular Bostonian is one of the few breeds of dog developed in America. BREED OF THE WEEK —

We find that ants are still a problem in many areas at this time of the year. The only effective program is to destroy them at their source. While there are items available which can be used indoors to control ants, these pests should never be allowed to get that far. Good results can be obtained by using a 45 per cent chlordane spray. Since ants will protect aphids because of the sweet secretion that comes from the aphids, you will have to spray your plants thoroughly in addition to using this same spray wherever you see the ant hills. Moving into that time of year when we can expect rain, do not take chances on slugs or snails ruining the small plants you will be planting now. Scatter a few small pellets around the plants, especially older perennial clumps where these marauders hide and breed. Apply the pellets immediately following a rain or after you have irrigated your garden, then hold off on the water for a few days.
